Police Probe Hotel Deaths
PORTLAND—Two men were found yesterday shot to death in a downtown residential hotel, causing police to reconsider two other deaths at the property ruled accidental a week ago. Diego Paltrone, twenty-six, and Jon Dwyer, thirty-two, were residents of the building at 1115 S.W. Eleventh Ave. and had been engaged in an argument before shots were fired, residents said. The building, favored by homosexual men, had been under scrutiny since the suicide of resident Markus Bane six months ago. Evidence suggests the shootings might be the result of a murder-suicide, according to Sgt. Det. Dave Kenton. Individuals who heard the altercation said Dwyer's room was locked before they broke in and discovered the bodies. The deaths of Paltrone and Dwyer follow the deaths of two other residents of the hotel. Last week Cyril McNamara, nineteen, and Blues Kaufman, twenty-six, apparently were killed after falling from a hotel window. Authorities said they will look closer at Bane's suicide and the drug death of Lane Outlaw, whose body was found last month in a parking garage at Fourth Avenue and Pine Street. According to police, Outlaw was also a resident of the hotel.
