Believed to be one of the earliest textiles, felt has been made by the nomadic peoples of Central Asia for over 2,500 years and the craft still thrives today as an integral part of their culture. Valued for both its functional and decorative qualities, felt is used to make yurts and all manner of objects relating to daily life, such as carpets, interior fittings, carrying bags, saddle cloths and clothing. Traditional feltmaking is also still practised in many other parts of the world, and this book is the first comprehensive overview. It looks in particular detail at the Turkic and Mongol traditions, which include felt from Kyrgyzstan, Kazakhstan, Uzbekistan, Turkmenistan and Xinjiang and from Mongolia, Tibet, Bhutan and South-East Asia respectively, as well as closely associated styles from Afghanistan and the Caucasus. Iranian, Turkish and Indian felts reveal historical influences from the Middle East, and felts from Romania, Hungary and Japan are also covered. As well as the history and technology of feltmaking, the book will explore patterns and symbolism. Illustrated with spectacular textiles from museums in Britain, the United States, Russia and Europe, as well as field photographs, archival material and details of motifs, this book will provide a unique insight into nomadic life as well as an inspirational source of designs for textile specialists.

Kay Newberry:

As a college student exactly feel bored to help reading. If their teacher requested them to go to the library in order to make summary for some book, they are complained. Just small students that has reading's heart and soul or real their passion. They just do what the educator want, like asked to go to the library. They go to presently there but nothing reading really. Any students feel that reading through is not important, boring along with can't see colorful photos on there. Yeah, it is to get complicated. Book is very important for yourself. As we know that on this time, many ways to get whatever we would like. Likewise word says, ways to reach Chinese's country. So , this Nomadic Felts (Artistic Traditions in World Cultures) can make you truly feel more interested to read.
